SHORTS.

Smith & Maitland want all kinds of country products.
The grain crop is reported good in our West.
Hugh McElroy, near Mayview, is building a new farm house.
Every farmer in Lafayette county should raise some tobacco.

Jas. H. Bowen is just completing a new house near Mayview.

Thus far—the thermometer is down from 40° to 36°.

The first boat out west, last year, was on the 16th of March—the Fanny Lewis.

Capt. Geo. Keith.

Our first church meetings have closed, with upwards of 100 conversions.

Baptism tomorrow.

Don't delay but call early in the week at Conkling & Beedings, so as to secure the first choice of their great sale.

Mr. Charles H. Royle goes east this evening to buy a stock of goods and to purchase literature for the Baptist Sunday school and Boys' Club.

The Narrow Gauge will run an excursion train to Kansas City tomorrow. Fare, round trip, $2. Train leaves depot at 7 o'clock. Returning leaves Kansas City at 3:30.

New and nobby designs in Coffers, Cuds and Hamburg Elgins at an immense reduction. Call early to get the cream of the immense bankrupt sale. Conkling & Beedings.

Read Conkling & Beeding's advertisement of their immense cheap sale of bankrupt goods. They are by far the cheapest goods ever offered in Lexington, all fresh and durable.

Lost—A jet and gold necklace, with coral and gold ornament. The owner will be rewarded for returning it to this office. Lost here, the Methodist College and the residence of Mr. F. R. Rose.

Henry Sinauer goes east Monday to buy a maximum stock of spring clothing. He knows just what our people want, and when he comes back will bring you the very latest style in men's wear.

Gutenberg Lodge, No. 39, I. O. O. F., will hold their annual meeting of officers, at their hall on the first Monday in April—east Monday. A grand ball will be given in the evening at "Bacon's Cave."

Lost—Between the residence of Jos. F. Smith and Lexington, a pair of saddle-pockets, with the initials E. L. S.—M. on them. The owner will be rewarded for returning it to this office.

Conkling & Beeding's just now giving away a large amount of spring goods.

It is twice as large as any stock ever bought by them, and they will offer some of the greatest bargains ever seen in Lexington.

Mrs. T. Radish wishes to sell a fine bedroom set, together with a double mouse, marble top table, etc. While sold for much less than they are worth, she will go west with the proceeds of the sale. They are now ready to receive the residence of C. W. Winters.

We have received the prospects of Major John N. Edwards' new book, but the crowded state of our columns prevents our giving it such notice. It deserves this week. It is to be sold by subscription, and persons desiring a copy can get information regarding it here. It will be well worth the cost.

We have received the report of the top of earth yesterday morning, but the old road followed the cut virgin in such a deep surface that for some hours she was invisible to the naked eye. In other words, on the 9th day of March the thermometer marked 26 degrees below the freezing point, and she was thickly floating in the river.

The people of Mount Hill, in this country, are a hardy, industrious, school, ship school and literary society, and that they may be no relaxing of the public morals, they have prayer meeting and preaching every Sunday. With all these influences for good, the youth of that section should grow up in the fear and admonition of the Lord, and in the graces of cultural life. They should never weary in well doing.

Mr. Edwards, one of Lexington's oldest merchants, has sold out his interest in the boat and ship business to Mr. Edward Meyer, who has for several years been employed in the store as salesman. The firm will in future consist of Frank Krieger and Mr. Meyer. They are both worthy young men who have had much experience in the line of goods which they now carry. We hope that their success will be great.
